Growing up Pro-Life

Fr. Frederick Edlefsen

Back in the 1970's, mom and dad got involved in the "Right to Life" movement. Nothing strident. But they were grieved when the Supreme Court greenlighted the violation of unborn babies. Mom was an artist, empathic to all things delicate, vulnerable, and small. She contemplated everything's soul. Dad taught high school English and Drama. He had a soft spot in his heart for the riffraff, personally choosing a group he called the "dirty dozen" to star in Mash, a play he directed based on the popular sitcom.

Perhaps dad's connection with the "dirty dozen" was influenced by his radio days at WNNJ in Newton, New Jersey. People opened up to him. It was the late 1960s. As a radio DJ and newsman, he accompanied military personnel to inform parents of their son's death in Vietnam. What would a young radio man say at such a grievous moment? He made a delicate request: "Tell me about your son." The parents opened up. They had something to tell the whole world – about their son.

During Gulf Coast vacations, mom combed beaches for seashells, contemplating their intricate colors, curves, and textures. She often sketched or water-colored them. Her moral conscience expressed these sensibilities: destroying intricate beauty was repugnant. Nature's sacraments reveal God's mind. But, in our rough-spoken world, the seashells of human life were being smashed before the ocean of God could craft their beauty.

One Advent, my Catholic high school collected gifts for needy children. Mom, dad, and I brought our presents to a poor family. But when we entered their apartment, the family's father expressly turned his back on us, perhaps in shame or resentment. But the mom and children accepted the presents. In truth, I still feel conflicted and convicted by the experience. Yes, it opened my eyes to a social problem. But social problems are also very personal. They intimately touch upon a person's dignity. Decades have since passed, and I'm still processing this.

Once a baby comes from the womb into the world, it must be given life again and again and again. Even a father who must watch his children receive charity needs to be given life. Being pro-life is more than stopping death. It's affirmative. Giving life – again and again and again – is a way of life. That's what I learned from growing up pro-life.

Stewardship Reflection

"Jesus turned and saw them following him and said to them, 'What are you looking for?'"

John 1:38

When we recognize who we are, it's easier to find what we are looking for. Once we see ourselves, and others, as children of God, we spend less time looking for the material comforts of the world. Instead, our hearts long for something deeper that can only be filled by God.

Ask God daily how He wants you to live the life He intended for you.

Creciendo Pro-Vida P. Frederick Edlefsen

En la década de 1970, mis padres se involucraron en el movimiento del "Derecho a la Vida". Nada estrepitoso. Pero sí les causó una gran pena cuando la Corte Suprema dio luz verde contra toda protección legal para los bebés antes del nacimiento. Mi madre era una artista, empática con todas las cosas delicadas, vulnerables y pequeñas. Ella contemplaba el alma de todo. Mi padre enseñaba inglés y teatro en la escuela secundaria. Él prefería trabajar con grupos de jóvenes "problemáticos", eligiendo personalmente a un grupo al que llamó la "docena sucia" para protagonizar Mash, una obra que dirigió basada en la popular comedia de televisión.

Tal vez la conexión de mi padre con la "docena sucia" fue influenciada por sus días en la radio en WNNJ en Newton, Nueva Jersey. La gente se sentía muy en confianza con él. Era finales de la década de 1960. Como locutor de radio y periodista, mi padre acompañaba al personal militar a informar a los padres de la muerte de su hijo en Vietnam. ¿Qué diría un joven de radio en un momento tan doloroso? Él hacía petición delicada: "Háblame de su hijo". Los padres obedecían. tenían algo que contar sobre su hijo al mundo entero.

Durante las vacaciones en la costa del Golfo, mamá peinaba las playas en busca de conchas marinas, contemplando sus intrincados colores, curvas y texturas. A menudo las dibujaba o pintaba en acuarelas. Su conciencia moral expresaba estas sensibilidades: destruir la belleza intrínseca era repugnante. Los sacramentos de la naturaleza revelan la mente de Dios. Pero, en nuestro mundo tosco, las conchas marinas de la vida humana están siendo destruidas antes de que el mar de Dios pueda crear su belleza.

Durante una temporada de Adviento, mi escuela secundaria recolectó regalos para niños necesitados. Mis padres y yo llevamos nuestros regalos a una familia pobre. Pero cuando entramos en su apartamento, el padre de la familia nos dio la espalda expresamente, tal vez por vergüenza o resentimiento. Pero la madre y los niños aceptaron los regalos. En verdad, todavía me siento en conflicto y convicto por la experiencia. Sí, me abrió los ojos a un problema social. Pero los problemas sociales también son muy personales. Tienen un contacto íntimo con la dignidad de la persona. Han pasado décadas desde ese entonces, y todavía pienso en este momento.

Una vez que un bebé nace del vientre materno y viene al mundo, se le debe afirmar su vida una y otra vez. Incluso un padre que debe ver a sus hijos recibir caridad necesita afirmación. Estar a favor de la vida es más que estar en contra de la muerte. Es afirmar el valor de la vida humana. Afirmar la vida, una y otra vez, es la manera de vivir. Eso es lo que aprendí al crecer a favor de la vida.

“Jesus se volvió, y al ver que lo seguían les pregunto: ¿Que están buscando?” Juan 1:38

Cuando reconocemos quienes somos, es más fácil encontrar lo que estamos buscando. Una vez que nos vemos a nosotros mismos, y a los demás, como hijos de Dios, pasaremos menos tiempo buscando las comodidades materiales del mundo. En cambio, nuestros corazones anhelaran algo mas profundo que solamente puede ser satisfecho por Dios. Pregúntele a Dios diariamente como quiere que viva su vida, la vida que él tiene dispuesta para usted.
