Labor Day Reflections

A Digest of Pope Saint John Paul II on Human Work

By Fr. Frederick Edlefsen

In work, humans participate in the Creator's activity. Jesus proclaimed "the gospel of work" as a craftsman. And yet, he opposed anxiety about work.

The Bible refers to many human professions: doctors, pharmacists, craftsmen, artists, blacksmiths, farmers, scholars, sailors, builders, musicians, and fishermen. St. Paul was a tentmaker. He teaches that people should "do their work in quietness and to earn their own living" (1 Thessalonians 4:11-14). He lamented idleness. "If anyone will not work, let him not eat" (2 Thessalonians 3:10-13).

The Second Vatican Council said, "Just as human activity proceeds from man, so it is ordered towards man. When people work, they not only alter things and society; they develop themselves as well ... They go outside themselves and beyond themselves. [This is] of greater value than any external riches earned ... Hence [human work] should harmonize with the genuine good of humanity and allow people ... to pursue their total vocation and fulfill it."

Work's spirituality reveals the meaning of progress: "A person is more precious for what he is than for what he has. Similarly, all that people do to obtain greater justice, wider brotherhood, and a more humane ordering of social relationships has greater worth than technical advances. [Technical] advances supply the material for human progress, but alone they can never actually bring it about."

Work, manual and intellectual, involves toil. In Genesis, work's blessings elevate humans to God's image. But sin made toil brutal: "Cursed is the ground because of you; in toil you shall eat of it all the days of your life" (Genesis 3:17). This brutal toil announces death: "In the sweat of your face you shall eat bread till you return to the ground, for out of it you were taken" (Genesis 3:19). "Then I considered all that my hands had done and the toil I had spent in doing it" (Ecclesiastes 2:11).

Salvation came through suffering and death. In toil, man joins Jesus in humanity's redemption. Christ's disciples carry crosses every day in their work. Christ purifies and strengthens work to make life more human. Work builds a new human family, the New Age and the Kingdom of God.

Catholic Prayers....

A Prayer for Labor Day

As the sun rises to bring in the new day:
We remember those who descend into the earth, their work begins in darkness, pulling from the earth, the resources we steward.
We remember those who work inside a building away from the light and brightness of the day.
We remember those who work outside in the harsh elements of our world, the bitter cold and sweltering heat of extremes.
We remember those who do not have a job to go to, who are struggling to meet the needs of their daily living expenses, for whom the day becomes long and arduous.

As the sun sets to bring in the evening of rest:
We remember those who work in the night.
We remember those who are trying to recover from their labor and toils of the day.
We remember those who participate in unsafe and dangerous work.
We pray for a renewed sense of dignity in their lives and in their work.

God, in your goodness, you have made a home for the worker.
Make a place in our hearts for compassion to the men and women who labor tirelessly for basic necessities. Ensure a place for the men and women who are struggling to find work. Grant us your wisdom to greet and care for those who are unable to work due to illness or circumstances that prevent their participation. Be with us all, Christ Jesus, as we go about the busyness of our work. May we continue to work together to bring about your reign!

We ask this in your holy name, through the power of the Holy Spirit.
Amen. Source: USCCB.org

Reflexiones del Día del Trabajo

Compendio de las enseñanzas del Papa San Juan Pablo II sobre el Trabajo

By Fr. Frederick Edlefsen

En el trabajo, los seres humanos participan en la actividad del Creador. Jesús, como artesano, proclamó "el evangelio del trabajo". Y, sin embargo, se oponía a la ansiedad por el trabajo.

La Biblia se refiere a muchas profesiones humanas: médicos, farmacéuticos, artesanos, artistas, herreros, agricultores, maestros, marineros, constructores, músicos y pescadores. San Pablo enseñaba que las personas deben "hacer su trabajo en paz para ganarse su pan" (1 Tesalonicenses 4:11-14). El se lamentaba de la ociosidad, "el que no quiere trabajar, que no coma" (2 Tesalonicenses 3:10).

El Concilio Vaticano II declaró: "Así como la actividad humana procede del hombre, así también está ordenada hacia el hombre. Cuando las personas trabajan, no solo alteran las cosas y la sociedad; también se desarrollan a sí mismos... Salen de sí mismos y más allá de sí mismos. [Esto es] de mayor valor que cualquier riqueza ganada en el mundo... Por lo tanto, [el trabajo] debe armonizar con el bien genuino de la humanidad y permitir a las personas... seguir y cumplir su vocación verdadera.

La espiritualidad del trabajo revela lo que significa el progreso: "Una persona vale más por lo que es, que por lo que tiene. Del mismo modo, todo lo que la gente hace para obtener una mejor justicia, una mayor fraternidad y un ordenamiento más humano de las relaciones sociales, es más valioso que los avances técnicos. Los avances [técnicos] suministran el material para el progreso humano, pero por sí solos nunca lo llevan a cabo".

El trabajo, manual e intelectual, implica esfuerzo. En el libro de Génesis, las bendiciones de la labor humana elevan a los seres humanos a la imagen de Dios. Pero el pecado original hizo del trabajo un castigo: "Maldito sea el suelo por tu culpa. Con fatiga sacarás de él tu alimento todos los días de tu vida" (Génesis 3:17). Este trabajo duro precede a la muerte: "Ganarás el pan con el sudor de tu frente, hasta que vuelvas a la tierra, de donde fuiste sacado" (Génesis 3:19). "Entonces dirigí mi atención a todo lo que habían hecho mis manos, y a todo el esfuerzo que me había empeñado en realizar" (Eclesiastés 2:11).

La salvación del hombre llegó a través del sufrimiento y la muerte. Con el trabajo, el hombre se une a Jesús en la redención de la humanidad. Los discípulos de Cristo cargan cruces todos los días en sus trabajos. Cristo purifica y envigoriza el trabajo para hacer la vida más llevadera. El trabajo construye una nueva familia humana, la Nueva Era y el Reino de Dios.
