Go to the Lost Sheep
And the Sacred Heart of Jesus
By Fr. Frederick Edlefsen

“At the site of the crowds, Jesus’ heart was moved with pity for them because they were troubled and abandoned...” Today’s Gospel challenges us to see the world through the eyes of Jesus Christ, not prevailing media.

Beware of perspectives coming from “left” and “right”, “red” and “blue”, narrated among podcasters, influencers, and social media postings. These perspectives critically adjudicate “the other side,” analyzing “their” ills. Solutions are scarce.

Catholicism has a solution. It comes from the Sacred Heart of Jesus, whom we honor in June. Looking over the crowds, Jesus did not analyze or dissect their absurdities – like podcasters and news outlets. Christ looked upon them with mercy, with his empathetic Heart.

Podcasters and news outlets thrive on outrage and conspiracy theories, magnifying extreme things their opponents say and do. In effect, they exploit the void of dignity that drives their opponents, without acknowledging that they themselves suffer the same plight. Healing the world is not about morbidly exposing its darkness. Rather, the wound to be healed is the feeling, “I don’t count.” Incrimination is not the answer. Creating a sense of belonging is. A favorite short story of mine, by Flannery O’Connor, is “The River.” It’s about a young boy, Harry Ashfield, who is neglected by his affluent, partying parents in a southern town. A babysitter took little Harry to a healing service by a river. The preacher said he will “count” after he’s baptized. The boy was dunked by the preacher in the muddy river. When Harry emerged from the water, the Reverend said, “You count now. You didn’t count before.” O’Connor wrote, “The boy was too shocked to cry.” Harry wanted to relive the experience of “you count”. So, he returned to the river the next day to dunk himself. He drowned.

The tale is classic Southern Gothic literature. Flannery O’Connor, the ever faithful and masterful Catholic, captures our deep and intuitive need for dignity and identity – “I count” – that every person will seek to fulfill, even to death.

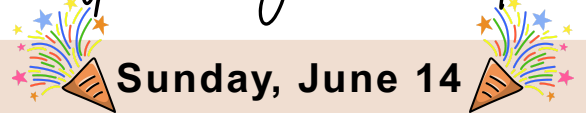

Catholics must be on the forefront of this message: Everyone “counts.” Otherwise, people will hungrily assert their need for worth and identity, even to their own destruction and everyone else’s. Jesus says, “Go to the lost sheep...”. This is our mission.

Id a la oveja perdida Y al Sagrado Corazón de Jesús Father Frederick Edlefsen

"Al ver a las multitudes, el corazón de Jesús se conmovió con compasión por ellas porque estaban extenuadas y desamparadas..." El Evangelio de hoy nos desafía a ver el mundo a través de los ojos de Jesucristo, y no a través de los medios de comunicación predominantes.

Ten cuidado con las perspectivas que vienen de la "izquierda" y la "derecha", "roja" y "azul", expresadas por los podcasters, influenciadores y publicaciones en las redes sociales. Estas perspectivas juzgan "el otro lado" críticamente, analizando "sus" males categóricamente. Las soluciones son escasas.

El catolicismo tiene una solución. Proviene del Sagrado Corazón de Jesús, el cual honramos en el mes de junio. Al observar a las multitudes, Jesús no analizó ni criticó sus absurdos comportamientos – como los podcasters y los medios de comunicación. Cristo los miró con misericordia, con su corazón empático.

Los podcasters y medios de comunicación prosperan gracias a la indignación y las teorías conspirativas que promueven, magnificando las cosas extremas que dicen y hacen sus oponentes. En efecto, explotan la falta de dignidad que muestran sus oponentes, sin reconocer que ellos mismos sufren de la misma situación.

Sanar los males del mundo no consiste en exponer su oscuridad escandalosamente. Más bien, la herida que hay que curar es el sentimiento de que "Yo no cuento". Acusar no es una solución. Crear un sentido de pertenencia sí lo es.

Una de mis novelas cortas favoritas, del autor Flannery O'Connor, se llama "El río". La historia trata sobre un niño pequeño en un pueblo del sur, Harry Ashfield, que es descuidado por sus padres adinerados y fiesteros. Una niñera llevó al pequeño Harry a un servicio de sanación junto a un río. El predicador le dijo a Harry que él "iba a contar" después de ser bautizado. El niño fue sumergido en el río fangoso por el predicador. Cuando Harry salió del agua, el reverendo le dijo: "Ahora cuentas. Antes no contabas." O'Connor escribió: "El niño estaba demasiado impactado para llorar." Harry quería revivir la experiencia de "tú cuentas". Así que volvió al río al día siguiente para sumergirse nuevamente. Se ahogó.

Esta historia es un clásico de la literatura gótica sureña. Flannery O'Connor, el siempre fiel y magistral escritor católico, capta nuestra profunda e intuitiva necesidad de dignidad e identidad – el "yo cuento" – que toda persona busca alcanzar, incluso hasta la muerte.

Los católicos deben estar al frente de este mensaje: Todos "cuentan". De lo contrario, la gente afirmará arbitrariamente sus propias necesidades de valor e identidad, incluso arriesgando su propia destrucción y la de los demás. Jesús dice: "Id a la oveja perdida..." Esta es nuestra misión.
